Response to Request for Reconsideration

1. This is in response to a request for reconsideration file January 13th, 2005. Claims 1-15 are being reconsidered in this action.

Response to Arguments

2. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-15 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 1-15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Lager et al (U.S. Patent 6,636,502) in view of Modarressi et al (U.S. Patent No. 6,667,971).

5. As per claims 1, 6 and 11, Lager et al teach a method for assigning unique identifiers for allowing communication between a GPRS (General Packet Radio Service) system (IP network, Fig. 8, 9) and a RADIUS (Remote Authentication Dial In User Service) server, including connecting one or more external networks to the GPRS system and identifying the each network with an APN (Access Point Name), and assigning to an or each APN external network a gateway address (see fig 8, 9, 10, column 11 line 6-12 line 65, 13 line 20-14 line 63), passing an APN-external network authentication request from a GGSN to the RADIUS server, providing from the RADIUS server to the GGSN upon such request a subscriber IP (Internet Protocol) address to be stored in the GGSN (Gateway GPRS Support Node), the subscriber IP address being unique for the respective APN external network defined in the GGSN. Lager et al fail to teach an inventive concept of using the GGSN for combining the APN gateway address and the subscriber IP address, to form a unique subscriber identifier (see fig 8, 9, 10, column 11 line 6-12 line 65, 13 line 20-14 line 63). However, Modarressi et al teach an inventive concept of combining the APN gateway address and the subscriber IP address, to form a unique subscriber identifier and sending from the GGSN the identifier to the RADIUS server for accounting, (see abstract, column 9 lines 21-40). Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in that art at the invention was made to modify the inventive concept of Lager et al to include an inventive concept of Modarressi et al combining the APN gateway address and the subscriber IP address, to form a unique subscriber identifier and sending from the GGSN the identifier to the RADIUS server for accounting because this would have facilitated the establishment of communication in order for the user to interact with the system, thereby provide an improve network address method for network device that use an internet protocol.

6. As per claim 2, 7 and 12, Lager et al teach a method wherein two or more of the APN external networks are provided with same subscriber IP address, but different gateway addresses to yield different unique APN identifiers (see fig 8, 9, 10, column 11 line 6-12 line 65, 13 line 20-14 line 63).

7. As per claim 3, 8 and 13, Lager et al teach a method wherein two or more subscribers are present in at least one of the networks, each subscriber in a common network being provided with its own subscriber IP address, but same network gateway address (see fig 8, 9, 10, column 11 line 6-12 line 65, 13 line 20-14 line 63).

8. As per claim 4, 5, 9, 10, 14 and 15, Lager et al teach a method wherein the identifier is a code/ASCII string having as a first element the gateway address of the APN external network in question and as a second element the subscriber IP address appended thereto (see fig 8, 9, 10, column 11 line 6-12 line 65, 13 line 20-14 line 63).
